MIND READING ACT OFFERED AT ODEON

Ava Muntell and Company Present a Novel and Interesting Feature.

The Odeon has a novelty for the last two days of this week in Ava Muntell and Company's mind reading act. This act did not arrive in time to go on for yesterday's performance, but it arrived in time for the matinee this afternoon. It is a very interesting performance. The other act on the bill, Barbour and Lynn, in rural comedy, singing and talking, is very good and pleases all.

Frederick Thomson has returned from the mountain districts of northern Georgia, where he has been staging Hazel Dawn's next production, "The Feud Girl," for the Famous Players.

"At Ocean Park" is the title of the new bill being presented today at the Palace theater by the "Broadway Revue" Musical Comedy Company. Special scenery for this bill is being used and with the addition of three new members to the company it promises to be the best program presented by the company this week. Misses Viola Spaeth, Sadie DeVois and Lottie Gibson arrived here from Atlanta, Ga., yesterday and will present some very good specialties today and tomorrow.

Mr. Horace B. Carpenter, the disastor actor, has been selected to play the role of Decimus Brutus in the all star production of "Julius Caesar," which will be given in the open air stadium in Hollywood. Theodore Roberts, the Lasky-Paramount star, plays the role of Julius Caesar, and a number of other Laskyites will participate.

An Equitable production, "By Whose Hand?" one of the strongest photo plays ever offered, is being presented to patrons of the Orpheum theater today with a wonderful triple alliance, Edna Wallace Hooper, Charles Ross and beautiful Muriel

MURIEL OSTRICHE.

Ostriche, in the leading part. The story is shrouded in deep mystery. Its staging is unsurpassed and the acting is said by critics to be the most wonderfully effective ever presented in an Equitable feature. Tomorrow, the brilliant co-stars, Marguerite Fischer and Harry Polard, will appear in a Mutual Masterpiece called "Infatuation," a drama of stage life in five acts.

A melodrama called "The Power Behind the Throne," is to be produced shortly with Beth Franklyn in the leading role. It is by Alice Rogers.

At the Robinson Grand today Bertha Kalich, one of the greatest actresses, and the only dramatic artist in the world who can be seriously considered as the successor to Sarah Bernhardt, appears on the screen in a modern society drama entitled "Slander." This is Miss Kalich's first appearance before Clarkburg spectators and no doubt the usual large gatherings at this popular playhouse will enjoy and marvel at this wonderful dramatic celebrity.

"The Evangelist," a V. L. S. E. feature starring Gladys Hanson and George Soules, is the principal attraction at the Blou today. This four-reel photoplay was adapted by Clay M. Green from the drama of the same name by Sir Henry Arthur Jones. It was produced by Barry O'Neill. The scenes are English and the plot deals frankly with several vital phases of life. The cast is an excellent one and includes the best talent in the Lubin studio. Then there is the ninth chapter of "The Iron Claw," featuring Pearl White, Creighton Hale and Sheldon

GLADYS HANSON.

Lewis. This episode proves to be the most interesting one released so far. Hearst-Vitagraph News No. 28 includes several important events of special interest in connection with this government and Mexico and the latest spring fashions. A comedy is included extra to effect a well balanced entertainment. The Saturday offering will include Richard Buiher and Rosetta Brice in "The Gods of Fate," released on the V. L. S. E. program; "The Hazards of Helen" and a return engagement of "Musty Suffer."

West Virginia Briefs

HUNTINGTON: Arraigned on a charge of automobile speeding, J. C. Schmidlapp said that he was late for church and that it was the first time he had attended in four years. "That's no excuse," said the magistrate. "I fine you $2 and costs."

WHEELING: J. Oscar Schenerelein, aged 55, a well known contractor, was fatally injured when the automobile truck he was driving plunged through a fence in front of the Ohio Valley hospital, and dropped over a precipitous cliff sixty feet high.

LEAKING: After adjourning Huntington as its next meeting place, and electing officers for the coming year, the fifty-first annual meeting of the grand encampment of West Virginia, I. O. O. F., closed. Officers elected follow: Grand patriarch, H. E. Bennett, Wheeling; grand high priest, Gilbert R. Smith, St. Mary's; grand scribe, C. L. Simpson, Huntington; grand treasurer, C. H. Riggie, Fairmont; grand senior warden, Edward C. Ambrose, Marlinton; grand junior warden, A. H. Evans, Potosi; grand representative for two years, Albin W. Stevens, Philippi.

WHEELING: Under heavy guard, "Jeff" Harrison, of San Antonio, Tex., accused by postoffice inspectors of being the leader of the gang that held up a Baltimore and Ohio train at Central last fall, was taken to Parkersburg. A special order of removal

Sir Herbert Tree produced his revival of "The Merchant of Venice" in New York with Elsie Ferguson as Portia. Schuler Ladd was the Gratiano.

Elsie Janis will replace Gaby Deslys in "Stop, Look and Listen," as the latter actress has gone abroad and will not return to the cast next season.

Charlie Chaplin proves his dramatic ability as well as his cleverness in comedy in the latest Essanay Chaplin comedy, "Police," released May 27 through the General Film Company. As a robber he enters a house and loots it. Then when the woman tells him her mother is ill, he forces his companion in crime to quit the premises. Later he returns the rings his companion refused to part with until forced to after a battle with Chaplin. This part he plays straight and adds a touch of pathos to the otherwise slap-stick work.

Dr. Abraham Jacobi on his 86th birthday.

Dr. Abraham Jacobi, "the grand old man of medicine," celebrated his 86th birthday recently by looking after the wants of many patients. He is known throughout the country as an authority on infants' diseases and as the author of many books.

sent out by the state department of health to all owners and keepers of summer resorts in West Virginia against employment of cooks, waitresses, chambermaids, laundresses and others who have had typhoid fever within the last year, and against permitting such persons to handle any milk or other foods used at the hotels. The warnings declare that such persons may carry typhoid germs and can transmit the infection, although they have been cured for several months.

WESTON: The third annual convention of the First congressional district of West Virginia Federation of Women's Clubs is in session here. The various clubs of the district are well represented, many prominent leaders of the state being present for the opening session.

CHARLESTON: The public service commission is hearing the expert testimony of L. F. Sullivan, of Richmond, Va., the controller of the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway Company, on the petition of the company to increase its passenger rates.

WHEELING: Two applications for injunctions against local property owners have been filed in the circuit court, by attorneys representing the state prohibition department, to enjoin them from permitting liquor being stored on their premises.

CHARLESTON: Negotiations looking toward a settlement of the strike of coal miners in the Pomeroy Bend region are being made and it is expected that a new contract will be signed this week, making a resumption of work in the field, probably for next Monday. Four companies are operating in that field and the mines have been idle since May 1.

PARKERSBURG: The thirteenth annual convention of the West Virginia Wholesale Grocers' Association adjourned here after a two-day session, marked by the largest attendance in recent years. The following officers were re-elected: President and secretary, W. C. McConaughy of Parkersburg; vice president, Allan Brock, of Wheeling; treasurer, John B. Stevenson, of Huntington. This city, for the third consecutive year, was chosen for the holding of the 1917 convention. A banquet marked the closing session.

CHARLESTON: A writ of prohibition returnable next Tuesday has been awarded by the supreme court of appeals against Judge Homer B. Woods, of the circuit court, of Gilmer county, on petition of the Coal and Coke Railroad Company.

WHEELING: Oil City, Pa., will be the meeting place of the Western District Conference of Women, Joint Synod of the Lutheran church, it was announced when the conference adjourned here.

ELKINS: Sparks from burning saw dust Thursday destroyed the mill, machine shops and 1,000,000 feet of lumber at the Laurel River Lumber
